

Lígia Maria Nunes, economist, working for the Banco de Portugal for 13 years, most of the time in the Statistics Department. She is since last April, the head of the Communication and Planning division at the statistics department. Over the last 4 years, she was deeply involved in several initiatives to promote statistical literacy especially among high school teachers and university's students and over the last 2 years she has been developing a new strategy for better communicate and disseminate statistics through BPstat, the Banco de Portugal's statistical website.