June 2016

August 12th, 2016

Banco de Portugal publishes today, in table A.25 of the Statistical Bulletin and in BPstat, data on shares and debt securities issues for June 2016.

In June 2016, net securities issued (gross issues minus redemptions) by residents amounted to 1.9 billion euros (Chart 1), with the more prevalent being long term debt securities.

Concerning the breakdown by institutional sector, the highlight goes to the general government with net issues of 2.1 billion euros (Chart 2). In the first half of 2016, general government issued, in net values, 9.2 billion euros of debt securities, the second highest value, of the series, only surpassed in the first half of 2009, when the net issues reached 11.4 billion euros.

The outstanding amount of securities issued by residents at the end of June totaled 427.9 billion euros. This value corresponds to a decrease of 1.9 billion euros relative to the previous month (Chart 3), mainly as a result of the devaluation of 3.4 billion euros in listed shares, mostly in the non-financial sector.
