January 21st, 2016

Banco de Portugal publishes today, in table A.20 of the Statistical Bulletin and in BPstat, the non-financial sector indebtedness statistics for November 2015.

In November 2015, the non-financial sector indebtedness amounted to 700.1 billion euros, an increase of 3.3 billion euros when compared with the previous month.

The growth of the non-financial sector indebtedness was due to the increase of the public sector indebtedness of 3.2 billion euros, reaching 294.7 billion euros (Chart 1). The increase of the public sector indebtedness was determined by the behavior of the general government, whose debt amounted to 288.3 billion euros.

The private sector indebtedness amounted to 405.3 billion euros, showing an increase of 0.1 billion euros compared to October 2015. This evolution mainly reflects an increase of 0.4 billion euros in the indebtedness of private corporations, which reached 261.3 billion euros.

The rise in public sector indebtedness led to an increase of the financing granted by non-residents and from general government. Private corporations recorded a decrease of financing from the financial sector offset by the increase in external indebtedness (Chart 2).
